1 Read Dominic's report about becoming a BBG at Wimbledon. Then do the task below.

I've always loved sports. I started playing tennis at the age of five. When Tony, who also plays at my tennis club, told me about applying to become a BBG (that's short for a ball boy or girl) at Wimbledon, I decided to join him.

I've always wanted to go to Wimbledon and watch the world's top players at this famous tournament. About 400 boys and girls apply each year, but only 200 are chosen in the end. You have to be really fit. The training starts in February and takes place four times a week.

It takes a lot of hard work and some of the other boys and girls had to leave because it was simply too much for them. Have you ever tried to run for 12 minutes and then stand completely still for four minutes? This is what we had to do in the first training session and it was really hard. What I liked about the training was that some of the sessions took place inside the All England Lawn Tennis Club and we had a chance to get into the stadium and have a good look around. There's a new museum there with lots of interesting things to see – it's just great for tennis lovers. You can also go on a guided tour and there's even a ghost tour, led by the voice of John McEnroe, one of the greatest players ever. After months of training really hard, I was really happy that I was chosen as a BBG. I'm so excited and can hardly wait for the tournament to start next week. My first match will be a first-round men's doubles. I've heard that the ball can reach speeds of more than 160 kilometres an hour. So I'm definitely going to watch out! I don't want to get hurt. If I do my job really well, there might be a chance to get to the finals. And that has always been my biggest dream.

My reading habits

Lucie: I really like reading. It's a great way to relax and chill out. I'm busy all day so I read in the evening before I go to bed. I usually end up falling asleep while I'm reading and wake up in the morning with the book on my head or something! I feel good when I'm reading and even if I've had a stressful day at school, I can just escape into a different world and forget about everything. Some people are crazy! They can read books in one or two days but I can't do that. I usually read about 10–15 pages most days. I really like fiction but I also like reading fashion magazines as well. I know, it's a bit shallow and superficial but it's still reading, isn't it? Besides, I like reading about famous celebrities and their lives and what the latest gossip is! I like paper books best but I also read e-books too. They're easy to download online and they're on your tablet in 60 seconds. I don't have to wait or walk around shops for hours looking for things. The other great thing about e-books is that I can increase the size of the text, and look up words easily. Another thing I like about e-books is that I can store them on my tablet and I don't have to carry them around. And I can highlight things I like and save them and even send cool quotes to my friends.

Robert: I love reading. It's my favourite leisure activity by far. I really like fiction because I can enter the world that's been created by the author and I can imagine myself as one of the characters in the book. I think about what I would do in their situation, how I would feel and what choices I would make. I guess my favourite time to read is early in the morning before I go to school and I also read a lot on weekends too. When we go on holiday, I sometimes read all day long! My mum goes crazy at me because she wants me to go outside and play instead.

I learn so many new things from reading. I learn new words and see different ways of viewing the world. I love reading books about ancient history as well, to understand things that have happened and see how the world has changed. I love bookshops; I could spend hours and hours in them! I never buy things online, it's just nicer to walk around a bookstore and find new things. I really like real books – you know, the paper ones where you can hold them, bend the pages back and even spill coffee on them! I'm not sure how many books I read but I guess it's probably about 20–25 books a year.

Nuts from Brazil – another Fair Trade project

Brazil nuts* only grow in certain areas of the Amazon rainforest (Bolivia, Brazil, Peru). The trees grow up to 50 metres tall and live for up to 1,000 years. Each tree produces up to 1,300 grapefruit-sized pods* which have 20 to 40 nuts in each of them. The pods drop to the forest floor when it rains between January and March. They are collected by nut gatherers* who fill bags weighing up to 70 kg which they carry on their backs along narrow paths through the rainforest.

The Amazon has a lot of problems today and losing trees from the rainforest is one of the biggest and most dangerous. Nut collecting plays an important role in helping to save the rainforest. Nut gatherers are farmers who earn money without cutting down trees. They get a fair price for the nuts from a Fair Trade project in the area. The Fair Trade partners sell the nuts to other organisations. In the last few years, about 19,000 tons of nuts were exported to other countries.

Campaign for climate change – a teenager project with a difference

Greta Thunberg first became interested in climate change when she was only eight years old and said she could not understand why no one was really doing anything about it. At age 11, she became depressed and said, "I feel like I am dying inside if I don't protest."

On 20th August 2018, Thunberg, now just 15, decided to start a protest by not going to school after there had been forest fires in Sweden. Because she wanted the Swedish government to do something, she protested by sitting outside the parliament building every day during school hours with the sign Skolstrejk för klimatet (school strike* for the climate). She began to gain worldwide attention. She inspired school students globally to take part in student strikes. More than 20 000 students had held strikes in about 270 cities by December 2018.

On 23rd January 2019, Thunberg travelled to a meeting of global leaders in Davos in Switzerland. She told them, "Some people, some companies, some decision makers in particular have known exactly what priceless* values they have been sacrificing* to continue making unimaginable* amounts of money. I think many of you here today belong to that group of people."

Some days later, she warned the global leaders that, "I don't want you to be hopeful. I want you to panic. I want you to feel the fear I feel every day. And then I want you to act. I want you to act as you would in a crisis. I want you to act as if the house was on fire – because it is."

Greta Thunberg has since won many awards for her campaign project to try and stop climate change, and in December 2018, Time magazine named Thunberg one of the world's 25 most influential* teenagers of the year.

VOCABULARY: *strike – Streik; priceless – unschätzbar; sacrifice – opfern;
unimaginable – unvorstellbar; influential – einflussreich

Ground Zero

On the morning of September 11th, 2001, terrorists* took over American Airlines Flight 11 and United Airlines Flight 175. Both planes were on their way to Los Angeles. The terrorists flew them on purpose directly into the two main towers of the World Trade Center in Manhattan, New York City. The towers crashed down and 2,606 people, including 2,192 civilians, 343 firefighters, and 71 police officers who were in the towers and in the area around them died in the attacks, as well as 147 civilians and the 10 terrorists on the two aircraft. After the attack, hospital workers and police officers began referring to the World Trade Center area as "Ground Zero", a name used to describe a place that has been completely destroyed with nothing left.

As the towers fell, clouds of dust* were blown across New York City and hundreds of thousands of tons of debris* were left where the towers once stood. The New York City Fire Department began immediately to clean up and search for anyone who might have survived.

People thought it would take a year, but by May 2002, the area was cleared without a single serious injury happening to anyone.

Starting on March 11th, 2002, eighty-eight searchlights* were arranged to form two beams* of light pointing up into the sky. This was called the Tribute in Light, and was originally lit every evening until April 14th, 2002. The lights have been lit every year on September 11th since then.

In August 2002, NYC started a competition to find the best design study for building a new World Trade Center.

On February 27th, 2003, Studio Daniel Libeskind officially won the competition. His design included the idea that the original footprints of the Twin Towers should become a memorial and not be used for any other purpose.

A memorial called Reflecting Absence remembers the victims of the September 11 attacks. It has a field of trees interrupted by the footprints of the twin towers. Pools of water fill the footprints, and underneath them there are memorial walls with the names of all the victims.

VOCABULARY: *terrorist – Terrorist/in; dust – Staub; debris – Trümmer; Schutt, searchlight – Suchscheinwerfer; beam – Strahl

1 Read Dominic's report about becoming a BBG at Wimbledon. Then do the task below.

I've always loved sports. I started playing tennis at the age of five. When Tony, who also plays at my tennis club, told me about applying to become a BBG (that's short for a ball boy or girl) at Wimbledon, I decided to join him. I've always wanted to go to Wimbledon and watch the world's top players at this famous tournament. About 400 boys and girls apply each year, but only 200 are chosen in the end. You have to be really fit. The training starts in February and takes place four times a week. It takes a lot of hard work and some of the other boys and girls had to leave because it was simply too much for them. Have you ever tried to run for 12 minutes and then stand completely still for four minutes? This is what we had to do in the first training session and it was really hard. What I liked about the training was that some of the sessions took place inside the All England Lawn Tennis Club and we had a chance to get into the stadium and have a good look around. There's a new museum there with lots of interesting things to see – it's just great for tennis lovers. You can also go on a guided tour and there's even a ghost tour, led by the voice of John McEnroe, one of the greatest players ever. After months of training really hard, I was really happy that I was chosen as a BBG. I'm so excited and can hardly wait for the tournament to start next week. My first match will be a first-round men's doubles. I've heard that the ball can reach speeds of more than 160 kilometres an hour. So I'm definitely going to watch out. I don't want to get hurt. If I do my job really well, there might be a chance to get to the finals. And that has always been my biggest dream.

1 Read the texts. Then answer the questions below.

My reading habits

Lucie: I really like reading. It's a great way to relax and chill out. I'm busy all day so I read in the evening before I go to bed. I usually end up falling asleep while I'm reading and wake up in the morning with the book on my head or something! I feel good when I'm reading and even if I've had a stressful day at school, I can just escape into a different world and forget about everything. Some people are crazy! They can read books in one or two days but I can't do that. I usually read about 10–15 pages most days.

I really like fiction but I also like reading fashion magazines as well. I know, it's a bit shallow and superficial but it's still reading, isn't it? Besides, I like reading about famous celebrities and their lives and what the latest gossip is! I like paper books best but I also read e-books too. They're easy to download online and they're on your tablet in 60 seconds. I don't have to wait or walk around shops for hours looking for things. The other great thing about e-books is that I can increase the size of the text, and look up words easily. Another thing I like about e-books is that I can store them on my tablet and I don't have to carry them around. And I can highlight things I like and save them and even send cool quotes to my friends.

Robert: I love reading. It's my favourite leisure activity by far. I really like fiction because I can enter the world that's been created by the author and I can imagine myself as one of the characters in the book. I think about what I would do in their situation, how I would feel and what choices I would make. I guess my favourite time to read is early in the morning before I go to school and I also read a lot on weekends too. When we go on holiday, I sometimes read all day long! My mum goes crazy at me because she wants me to go outside and play instead.

I learn so many new things from reading. I learn new words and see different ways of viewing the world. I love reading books about ancient history as well, to understand things that have happened and see how the world has changed. I love bookshops; I could spend hours and hours in them! I never buy things online, it's just nicer to walk around a bookstore and find new things. I really like real books – you know, the paper ones where you can hold them, bend the pages back and even spill coffee on them! I'm not sure how many books I read but I guess it's probably about 20–25 books a year.

- 1 When does Lucie like to read?
- 2 Where is her book when she wakes up in the morning?

Nuts from Brazil – another Fair Trade project

Brazil nuts* only grow in certain areas of the Amazon rainforest (Bolivia, Brazil, Peru). The trees grow up to 50 metres tall and live for up to 1,000 years. Each tree produces up to 1,300 grapefruit-sized pods* which have 20 to 40 nuts in each of them. The pods drop to the forest floor when it rains between January and March. They are collected by nut gatherers* who fill bags weighing up to 70 kg which they carry on their backs along narrow paths through the rainforest.

The Amazon has a lot of problems today and losing trees from the rainforest is one of the biggest and most dangerous. Nut collecting plays an important role in helping to save the rainforest. Nut gatherers are farmers who earn money without cutting down trees. They get a fair price for the nuts from a Fair Trade project in the area. The Fair Trade partners sell the nuts to other organisations. In the last few years, about 19,000 tons of nuts were exported to other countries.

Greta Thunberg first became interested in climate change when she was only eight years old and said she could not understand why no one was really doing anything about it. At age 11, she became depressed and said, "I feel like I am dying inside if I don't protest."

On 20th August 2018, Thunberg, now just 15, decided to start a protest by not going to school after there had been forest fires in Sweden. Because she wanted the Swedish government to do something, she protested by sitting outside the parliament building every day during school hours with the sign Skolstrejk för klimatet (school strike* for the climate). She began to gain worldwide attention. She inspired school students globally to take part in student strikes. More than 20,000 students had held strikes in about 270 cities by December 2018.

On 23rd January 2019, Thunberg travelled to a meeting of global leaders in Davos in Switzerland. She told them, "Some people, some companies, some decision makers in particular have known exactly what priceless* values they have been sacrificing* to continue making unimaginable* amounts of money. I think many of you here today belong to that group of people."

Some days later, she warned the global leaders that, "I don't want you to be hopeful. I want you to panic. I want you to feel the fear I feel every day. And then I want you to act. I want you to act as you would in a crisis. I want you to act as if the house was on fire – because it is."

Greta Thunberg has since won many awards for her campaign project to try and stop climate change, and in December 2018, Time magazine named Thunberg one of the world's 25 most influential* teenagers of the year.

1 Read the text. Then complete the sentences.Ground Zero

On the morning of September 11th, 2001, terrorists* took over American Airlines Flight 11 and United Airlines Flight 175. Both planes were on their way to Los Angeles. The terrorists flew them on purpose directly into the two main towers of the World Trade Center in Manhattan, New York City. The towers crashed down and 2,606 people, including 2,192 civilians, 343 firefighters, and 71 police officers who were in the towers and in the area around them died in the attacks, as well as 147 civilians and the 10 terrorists on the two aircraft. After the attack, hospital workers and police officers began referring to the World Trade Center area as "Ground Zero", a name used to describe a place that has been completely destroyed with nothing left.

As the towers fell, clouds of dust* were blown across New York City and hundreds of thousands of tons of debris* were left where the towers once stood. The New York City Fire Department began immediately to clean up and search for anyone who might have survived.

People thought it would take a year, but by May 2002, the area was cleared without a single serious injury happening to anyone.

Starting on March 11th, 2002, eighty-eight searchlights* were arranged to form two beams* of light pointing up into the sky. This was called the Tribute in Light, and was originally lit every evening until April 14th, 2002. The lights have been lit every year on September 11th since then.

In August 2002, NYC started a competition to find the best design study for building a new World Trade Center.

On February 27th, 2003, Studio Daniel Libeskind officially won the competition. His design included the idea that the original footprints of the Twin Towers should become a memorial and not be used for any other purpose.

A memorial called Reflecting Absence remembers the victims of the September 11 attacks. It has a field of trees interrupted by the footprints of the twin towers. Pools of water fill the footprints, and underneath them there are memorial walls with the names of all the victims.
